FOREWORD

This volume, entitled "An Alphabetical Subjectwise Index of Urdu etc., Manuscripts available in the Andhra Pradesh Government Oriental Manuscripts Library and Research Institute" is an index, but not a catalogue. In fact, a descriptive catalogue of Urdu Manuscripts compiled in two volumes in 1961 by Mr. Nasiruddin Hashami was already there in the Urdu language. It was very helpful to the Urdu knowing scholars. Most of the English knowing scholars, while consulting the catalogues of the Library, often suggest that an Index in English is useful to them to know of the material available here. The suggestion is appreciated by Urdu Scholars also. After careful consideration, from the administrative point of view, I took a decision and entrusted the work to Mr. Mir Karamath Ali, the Research Assistant of the department, laying down the general principles of indexing. He further sought the advice and suggestions of one or two other scholars in Library Science, like Mrs. Shakirah Begum, Assistant Librarian of Osmania University, Hyderabad and prosecuted the work. The result is the present volume.

The terms 'Index' and 'Catalogue' :

Here, I wish to say a word about indexing and cataloguing.

Like cataloguing, indexing is also an important and essential aspect of Library Science. It is not possible to visualise a library without an index. The very purpose of making available valuable information and knowledge to the public, through books, will be defeated if these materials are not properly organised. Indexing, in the initial stage, facilitates such orderly organisation of the material and the scholars' needs are thus primarily met with.

The terms 'Index' and 'Catalogue' are, at times, used synonymously. But they are not synonymous, although there is a little overlapping in their functions and jurisdictions.

Normally readers think of a catalogue in terms of books and the like material, while index is related to periodical articles and other materials including non bibliographical material. In fact, both the catalogue and index function as guides to the location of materials available. In the category of catalogues, the alphabetico-specific subject catalogue is different from the classified catalogue. It is evident that the former is self indexing while the latter is equipped with two separate indexes, the first being the alphabetical 'subject' index and the second being the alphabetical 'author' index. The reader in search of books first consults the index to the classified catalogue and then searches for entries in the main catalogue under the class number. From this, it may now be inferred that the index serves, as a link between the subject or author and the identified book. It is in this context, the index card comes into the field.

The usual practice in any library is to find the appropriate subject heading after due analysis and classification and to record the information on a card containing its bibliographical data. This index card arranged in a file, normally provides specific subject reference as also the location reference of the required script or document.

Now to draw a line between the two terms—'catalogue' and 'Index,' we may say the catalogue implies a 'regular list' irrespective of the order of its special arrangement, whereas the index specifically points out a particular point in the classified catalogue. A decade ago some of the veteran scholars went even to the extent of saying that the catalogue would imply only 'a list' irrespective of its arrangement. *This statement may now require a little modification to the effect that the catalogue implies 'a regular list' irrespective of its specific arrangement. However, it is all the technical aspect of the terminology which requires further study and accuracy in usage.

The Index of Urdu Manuscripts :

Although an index is different from a catalogue, the present index is, to some extent, based on the pattern of a classified catalogue and hence the alphabetical subject index together with the author index is provided within the framework. The index cards, separately filed in the library may help the reader for proper location of the scripts. The two volumes of the descriptive catalogue, already compiled by Mr. Nasiruddin Hashami are still useful to good many scholars. His catalogue contains the following items of manuscript description of which almost six are included in the present Index.

- | | |
|-------------------|------------------------------------|
| 1. Acc. No. | 7. Kind of script : |
| 2. Title : | 8. Name of the author : |
| 3. MSS. No. | 9. Brief introduction of the MSS : |

| 6. No. of lines : | 11. Ending of the MSS. |

Mr Hashami who maintained a private library of his own for a pretty long time, later got it registered and declared open for the ladies of Hyderabad. The then President of,

* A.K. Mukherjee : Fundamentals of special Librarianship and Documentation : IASLIC Manual No. 1 P. 55

Khawateen - e - Deccan Library and Research Institute made a special mention of Mr. Hashami's burning zeal for spreading the knowledge. It is he who catalogued the Urdu Manuscripts of the State Central Library (erstwhile Asafia Library) which were later transferred to the Andhra Pradesh Government Oriental Manuscripts Library and Research Institute. Mr. Hashami completed the work, single handed, in two years, and got it published in six months.

His two Volumes cover 1343 Mss. divided into 10 sections (Vol. I-8 ; Vol. II-2 sections) as shown below :

- | | |
|----------------|-------------------------|
| 1. Arts, | 6. Languages, |
| 2. History, | 7. Theology, |
| 3. Science, | 8. Hindi books, |
| 4. Sociology, | 9. Books on Islamic and |
| 5. Philosophy, | 10. Other Arts. |

This is all about the Descriptive Catalogue compiled by Mr. Nasiruddin. No contrast need be drawn between a 'Descriptive Catalogue' and an 'Index', as the very purpose of each of them is totally different from that of the other. But to know of the material now available here as against the old, this 'Index' may be helpful to a great extent.

The present Volume of Index covers 1777 Manuscripts in Urdu on a variety of subjects in seven language scripts, as detailed in the tabular forms enclosed to the "Introduction".

Indexing or cataloguing is no doubt a responsible work from the point of view of Library Science. It should help the readers, but not disappoint them. Lack of proper planning and scientific approach may render the endeavours futile. The analytical outlook with which the present index is prepared reveals a scientific approach towards the subject.

Schemes for publication of new catalogues, indexes and rare manuscripts.

Several schemes are now sponsored to compile new descriptive catalogues for the Manuscripts in urdu (1674)

Persian (8915) and Arabic (6337) available in this Library. Indexes for the Manuscripts are being prepared to serve the purpose of ready reckoners. While cataloguing and indexing are being done, the publication of rare unpublished manuscripts is also taken up and the work is now in progress. To facilitate corroboration and editing of some of the rare manuscripts, institutions like the India Office Library, London are also consulted for supplying the Microfilm copies. The response from the institutions abroad is very encouraging.

It is a matter of joy if our sincere efforts in this regard bear fruit by promoting regular studies and research in the oriental learning.

The Government of Andhra Pradesh are very keen on developing the department of Oriental Manuscripts Library and Research Institute and as Director of this department, I owe my humble and sincere thanks to the authorities at the helm of affairs.

INTRODUCTION

During the Asifjahi rule the State Central Library was known as the "Asafia Library", and it was founded jointly by Moulvi Syed Hussain Bilgrami, Nawab Imadul Mulk and Mulla Abdul Qayyum in 1308 Hijri (1891 A.D.). Later the Asafia government sanctioned grant in aid and then the Library was declared open to the public.

From time to time many private libraries belonging to certain distinguished persons of Hyderabad were merged with this Library, either by donation or by purchase. The Libraries of Nawab Imadul Mulk and Nawab Azam Yar Jung were donated by their generous owners and the libraries of Hakeem Syed Mohib Hussain and Hakeem Syed Qasim Bijapuri were purchased.

The fundamental aim of this public library was to provide facilities to general scholars and supply rare and useful material also to the Research Schol'rs. With this aim in view rare manuscripts in classical and modern languages were acquired through donation and purchase, thereby putting stop to the outflow of literary treasures of the state, some of which were being sold away by their owners.

After the integration of Hyderabad into the Union of India subsequent to the establishment of Andhra Pradesh, this Library began to be called "State Central Library.

An Oriental Manuscripts Library, as a part and parcel of State Archives was established in the year 1967 with a view to salvaging various valuable and rare manuscripts in the entire State for making them available to Scholars. Later the Oriental Manuscripts Library and Research Institute was shifted to State Central Library building and declared open as a separate branch of State Archives Department on the 25th July, 1969 by Sri P. V. Narasimha Rao, the then Honourable Minister for Education

In 1971 it was raised to the status of a Research Institute and a post of Joint Director was sanctioned by Government for its management under the control of Andhra Pradesh State Archives Department. Several rare and valuable manuscripts, paper and palm leaf, books in several languages and scripts were purchased. The Andhra Pradesh Government Oriental Manuscripts Library and Research Institute was separated from State Archives and made an independent directorate on 1st January, 1975 and all the manuscripts in Arabic, Persian, Urdu etc. languages of State Central Library were shifted to the Andhra Pradesh Government Oriental Manuscripts Library and Research Institute. This Research Institute housed nearly 23,000 manuscripts in fourteen languages in 47 subjects, a large number of which are un-published and rare.

Four volumes of catalogues were prepared in respect of Arabic, Persian and Urdu manuscripts by Sri Tasadduq Hussain Al Kazami and Sri Sayed Abbas Hussain Al Kazami nearly sixty years ago, when the manuscripts were housed in the State Central Library (Asafia Library). Out of 1674 paper manuscripts in Urdu, 1343 manuscripts were catalogued by Late Naseeruddin Hashami in the year 1961. Since this catalogue was prepared in Urdu, it is now proposed to prepare, particularly in English, an alphabetical subject wise Index of Urdu manuscripts along with the manuscripts in Punjabi, Pesho, Sindi and Turkish so that it may be of better use for good many scholars.

It is needless to say that the work of drawing up the manuscript catalogue is a highly technical and responsible job.

The publication of descriptive catalogues on scientific lines is taking a new stride, keeping in view the dire necessities of the scholars and also the budget limitations of our libraries. Some of the Oriental Libraries had to satisfy themselves with the publication of a simple Alphabetical Index of manuscripts. The Andhra Pradesh Government Oriental Manuscripts Library and Research Institute primarily publishes this Volume in the similar pattern, with the subject wise Index of manuscripts in Urdu, Punjabi, Pesho, Sindi, Turkish, English and Hindi languages.

The indexing work is done in the order of the Urdu alphabets with regard to the titles and subjects of the manuscripts after consulting 'The Dictionary of Islam' of Thomas Patrick Hughes, 'Persian'

English Dictionary' of steingass and 'Urdu classical Hindi and English Dictionary' of plat-s and catalogue of manuscripts in the India Office Library, London. The methods adopted in the indexing are given separately, along with the list of subjects.

The Index is divided into four parts.

Part-I contains the manuscripts in English, Hindi, Punjabi, Pēstho, Sindhi and Turkish languages.

Part-II contains Urdu manuscripts subject wise

Part-III contains Urdu manuscripts Jadeed (New-unclassified manuscripts) and Part-IV contains Urdu Shamilath (enclosures taken out from manuscripts) the manuscripts are given separate numbers.

This Research Institute housed nearly 4,000 palm-leaf and 19,000 paper manuscripts. Of the 6,337 manuscripts in Arabic, 8,915 manuscripts in Persian and 1,674 manuscripts in Urdu a large number of manuscripts in these languages are very rare and unpublished.

The Urdu manuscripts indexed in this volume deal with the literature of Qutub Shahi, Adil Shahi, Asif Jahi periods. Several of these manuscripts have been found out to have been belonging to the Dabistans (Schools) of Delhi and Lucknow.

A good number of Urdu manuscripts like Diwan-i-Ghawassi, Kuliyaṭ-i-Qulī Qutub Shah are very rare. Diwan of Mīrzā Ghalib which was printed in the life time of Mirza Ghalib, was produced to him for the purpose of correction. After making marginal correction of the side book, Mirza Ghalib had written his opinion and put his signature in the year 1835 A.D. This is the unique feature of this invaluable work. Similarly, this manuscripts Library has a number of other valuable works also.

While concluding this introduction I should say that this is only a modest beginning of the major work of preparing descriptive catalogues for all the manuscripts available in this department.

In this regard I express my hearty thanks to Mrs Shakirah Begum, Assistant Librarian, Osmania University, Hyderabad who has given me suitable suggestions from time to time and enabled me to do this job. I acknowledge the services of Mrs. Rafath Rizwana of our research wing who assisted me in copying the text of the Index.

Lastly it is my duty to pay hearty respects to Dr. V.V.L. Narasimha Rao, the Director of our department who has entrusted this work to me leaving necessary instructions for drafting this Index which may be useful for scholars abroad also
